"IF YOU WANT IT DONE RIGHT"

Many years ago when the railroad industry was still suffering acute growing pains, a certain railroad president became aware of the inadequate and obsolete equipment which his company owned, and decided to do something about it. One would naturally think that such a decision would involve the calling in of numerous assistants, a long series of investigations, and the study of voluminous records. But not so with this railroad president. Apparently believing in the old saying that "if you want something done right, do it yourself," he immediately ordered an observation car hooked to the front of a locomotive and journeyed over every mile of his company's property, taking notes on everything from tie spikes to rolling stock and buildings. As a result of this survey, so the story goes, "thousands of new oversize cars were bought, doubling the freight capacity; powerful engines were ordered; and the road was straightened, later called the most magnificent railroad property in America."

This incident is illustrative of the aggressive leadership and farsighted ability that characterized the "behind the scenes" development and growth of the American railroads. Citizens of the far west will ever be thankful to these leaders for the part they played in bringing western commerce into close contact with the industrial east. Probably the railroads exerted the greatest single force toward unifying our commercial life and binding together the interests of all the people in the making of the great and powerful nation which America is today.

Aggressive, farsighted railroad leadership has not faded with the passing of the years. The modern "streamliner" and efficient, courteous service is proof enough of this fact. Modern railroad organizations are alive and flexible to changing conditions, and as always are seeking that illusory ideal—perfection.

PRESS CONFERENCE LAWS

Newspaper editors and reporters will no longer be compelled to divulge sources of information in Pennsylvania, as that state now has a press confidence law. At the present time, Newsdom informs, nine states protect newspaper editors and reporters from turning "squealer" merely to advance the political ambitions of some attorneys and others.

Such laws would spare editors and reporters from unpleasant "fishing expeditions" in which is no intimation of libel. From time to time newspapers learn from confidential sources facts of direct interest to the public. If these sources should be divulged under pressure, they would be lost to the public.

Laws which permit editors and reporters to be forced to tell, or go to jail for contempt, are in the interest of politicians who would suppress news of some conditions which are unfavorable to them. Time is when, discretion being the better part of valor, persons who know of conditions which should be exposed keep their mouths shut.

The press confidence bill gives citizens an opportunity to expose community evils without courting reprisals from the evil doers. If and when there is libel in the printed reports, the injured persons have redress in the courts. The press confidence bill does not give newspapers license to disseminate libels. It is devised in the public good.

FORCING A PITCHER'S RECORD

They are saying that Carl Hubbell, a pitcher for the New York National League club, has won twenty-four consecutive games. They do this by combining his 1936 and 1937 records. They seem to forget that Albert G. Spaulding, then with Boston, won twenty-four consecutive games in the same season.

Officially "Rube" Marquard won nineteen consecutive games in 1912, but Al Monroe Elias, statistician, has said that Marquard should be recorded as winning twenty consecutive games; he as a relief pitcher won the twentieth. Hubbell won sixteen consecutive games last season.

If Walter Johnson, in his best years, had been pitching for a winning team, he probably would have left a record for all the rest of them to try to match or surpass. Johnson was far and away better than the Washington team he served.

ABOUT JUVENILE DELINQUENTS

Happening to meet, by chance, the other day a police officer from a large city, we were interested in his remarks about juvenile violators of the laws of the land.

This officer admitted that his state, the Gate City of Keokuk, Iowa, says, had no adequate program for juvenile delinquents but declared that he had not hesitated to set up his own scheme of "unofficial parole" for boys and girls running against the law for the first time, that he made it perfectly clear to them that they were not getting out of their misdeed entirely and that it would count against them heavily if they failed to mend their ways.

He was of the opinion that only a few of our young people are to be blamed entirely for their mistakes, that most of them are misled by older persons and that well-planned programs for boys and girls should center upon athletics and properly supervised amusements.

Every town and city, regardless of size, has among its problems the age-old puzzle of straying youth. It can be faced with intelligence only if there is an intelligent study of each local situation. No community needs outside experts or vast financial outlays to make progress locally. About the only things needed are an interest in youth, a belief that the race can be improved through its young people and a willingness to give some time and thought to the peculiar problems that exist.

CINCINNATI RECALLS COL. SHERRILL

From St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Cincinnati runs no risk with its new city manager. Col. C. O. Sherrill, who has accepted the post vacated by Dr. C. A. Dykstra, now president of the University of Wisconsin, was Dr. Dykstra's predecessor as manager of Cincinnati's municipal affairs.

Called to Cincinnati in 1926 to be its first city manager, he recognized the popular revolt against Cincinnati's old spoils rule for what it was—a civic rebirth. In the four years of his administration, Cincinnati was transformed from one of the worst-governed of our large cities to perhaps the best. Public opinion backed him in his insistence upon economy and efficiency, and the result was increased municipal services for less money. It was Col. Sherrill's excellent work which Dr. Dykstra continued and expanded.

Before he went to Cincinnati, Col. Sherrill achieved a notable record as an army engineer in charge of river and harbor improvements, flood control, levee construction and bridge building and as director of public buildings and parks in Washington, D. C. Municipal government needs administrators of his character and ability. Cincinnati has served the cause of better city government generally by returning its first manager to the public service.

WOMAN IN WRONG CLUB

From the New York Sun.

It happened in a small town in New Jersey. The new political club, organized to combat an older organization, was holding its first meeting of the ladies' auxiliary in its new club rooms. The little old woman entered uncertainly, found her way to the financial secretary, paid her initiation fee and received her membership card.

The meeting opened and a few speeches were made, during which it was noticed the little old lady seemed rather impatient. Finally she leaned over and asked one of those near her when Mr. Soando, for whom she confided she had great admiration, was going to speak. The lady to whom she spoke explained that he was the leader of the opposing political club and most certainly would not be speaking at this particular meeting.

The little old lady seemed surprised and asked the name of the new club, then, as she realized she was in the wrong club, a horrified look crossed her face. She hesitated a few moments, cast a disdainful glance about the room and fairly scurried out the door, leaving her membership card on the floor!

CHAPTER 29

AS JACQUELINE turned away from the door after ordering Colonel Lutman to leave, her mother slipped quickly toward it; but as her fingers gripped the handle, Jacqueline seized her mother's wrist, jerked her hand from the knob and placed herself with her back against the door. The colonel was safe out.

"I'm sure that he would never do any such thing."

"I dare say you're right," agreed the girl. "Probably he doesn't like policemen. How much money have we got, mother?"

"Money? I've really no idea. Very little, I should think. I had $750 when we were at Cobenzl, but I simply had to pay the hotel bill—the manager actually came up to my room when I was packing and demanded it—and I haven't dared to count it since we got to England. I know it will give me a dreadful headache when I do. And it's all so unnecessary. If only you'd be reasonable about Jim Asson!"

Mrs. Smith retired to the couch with an air of bewildered resignation.

"I'm sure I don't know what has happened to you, Jacqueline," she sighed. "To treat Colonel Lutman like that—saying those dreadful things to him and ordering him out of the room as if he were the cook..."

"Crook, mother—not cook. Colonel Lutman is nothing more than a crook. You can take that from me. I have information."

"I don't care what information you have, Jacqueline, you're no right to say such things. To his face, too! I've never felt so ashamed in my life. After all he has done for us!"

"All Colonel Lutman has done for us is to land us in the Dickens of a mess," Jacqueline interrupted. "For heaven's sake, mother, do try to see things as they are, and do not you'd like them to be. You don't like the idea of Colonel Lutman being a crook, and so you try not to believe it. But if a man isn't a crook he doesn't try to blackmail a girl into marriage by threatening her with a bad check."

Mrs. Smith sighed.

"It's a dreadful pity, Jacqueline. I'm sure you'll never find another job half as interesting as marrying Jim."

"Or half as profitable—eh, mother?"

"My dear, of course not. No girl is worth $10,000 a year except as a wife, and there aren't many men who'd pay a wife as much as that. If you've any consideration for your own happiness—and your mother's—you'll think twice before throwing Jim Asson away."

"All right, mother," said Jacqueline. "I'll think again. But it won't make the least difference."

"Tease? Then all I can say, mother, is that for a gentleman he has queer ideas of good taste. But he wasn't saying it in fun; you know that as well as I do, really, only you won't face it. If ever a man was in earnest, Colonel Lutman was. He thought he could frighten me with that check into marrying Jim, but it didn't come off. And it won't come off. He can do what he likes with the check. He can go to the police if he wants to."

"Good morning, Mr. Asson," he greeted him.

"Morning." Jimmy glanced up at the clock. It was half past 9. "Good Lord! Do you people sleep here?"

Mr. Bells gave a deprecatory cough.

"No, I—that is to say, we . . ."

The girl laughed shrilly, then said:

"Sleep here? Why, believe me, Mr. Asson, I wouldn't sleep here for the world."

Disconcerted, the managing clerk turned to Jimmy.

"Did you wish to see Mr. Stuckey?" Bells asked.

Jimmy nodded. "Where is he?"

"Mr. Stuckey is in court, sir."

"In court, eh? What's he doing there?"

"He is defending one of our—clients, sir. A gentleman named Savinski."

Jimmy laughed shortly and scornfully.

"Savinski? I know him—the dope dealer. Let's see—wasn't it Colonel Lutman who started that guy in business?"

"I'm afraid I have no information on the matter, sir."

"What a liar you are! I suppose you'll tell me next that you didn't know Lutman was a money lender?"

"I know that Colonel Lutman is a director of a loan and finance corporation," was the prim reply.

"Oh, you do know that, eh? Have you ever had to go to him for a bit on account?"

Bells shook his head with decision.

"No, sir. I am a careful-living man. I neither borrow nor lend."

The caller looked at him in mild astonishment.

"Do you get any pleasure out of life?" he asked.

"I am happy to say that I don't."

"Ah, here is Mr. Stuckey," the clerk added quickly as footsteps were heard outside the room, and in another moment his employer entered.

With a curt "Good morning" to his visitor Charles passed into his private office, followed by Asson, hung up his silk hat and took from his pocket a small bottle which he placed on his desk. Then he sat down and began to busy himself with some papers. Jimmy, seated in the armchair by the side of the desk, watched him for some moments, a sardonic smile playing on his thin lips.

Prolonged Deficiency Cause of Ill

The vitamins have made one or two additions to them. It should be remembered that it is only where there is prolonged deficiency that they result in actual disease.

There may be early stages which are not at all clear-cut. Thus Vitamin A is necessary for the integrity of epithelial tissue. While prolonged deficiency may cause inflammation of the eye, formation of kidney stones, and night blindness, in the early stage there may be just simply some defects of the epithelium of the mouth, nose or throat.

Vitamin B, if deficient for a long time, causes paralysis from neuritis, but a partial deficiency may cause simply loss of appetite and slight dropsy.

Our ancestors, in the spring used to have what they called "black leg," which consisted in small hemorrhages beneath the skin, caused by deprivation of fresh fruits and vegetables.

Deficiency of Vitamin D in a late stage will cause rickets, but before rickets appears there may be some decay of the teeth and softening of the bone.

The anti-anemia factor is now included among the vitamins, although it is manufactured by the body itself and need not be deliberately added to the food.

OUTFITTING FOR MEN AND WOMEN

GRANT POWER TO PREMIER BLUM

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, June 16.—(Wednesday)—The Chamber of Deputies today approved a bill to give Socialist Premier Leon Blum emergency financial power, after a split among Blum's own supporters had been healed. The vote was 346 to 247.

PARIS, June 16.—(Wednesday)—As Premier Leon Blum's government opened debate in the Chamber of Deputies early today on its demand for emergency financial powers, friends of the premier said he would resign whether the chamber voted him the powers or not.

They said he considered the communists' refusal to support his emergency powers bill had split the people's front and that he did not care to continue in office under such conditions.

Word that fall of the government was possible had spread through Paris and the galleries were crowded.

TEACHERS BE AWAY FOR THE SUMMER

By The Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 16.—The highway patrol appropriations bill, which provides funds for employing 38 new troopers, was signed today by Governor Lloyd C. Stark. It will also make possible the expansion of the patrol's radio facilities.

The measure, carrying expenditures of $97,160 for the 1937-38 biennium or more than double that approved two years ago, was one of five appropriations bills signed by Stark since late yesterday.

Measures giving a third of the state's general revenue, or about $26,000,000 for the next two years, to the school fund, and $31,828,290 for the state highway department, were approved yesterday afternoon.

Stark affixed his signature this morning to bills to appropriate $97,000 for assessing and collecting state board of equalization, and $34,750 for the cost of the 59th general assembly and a small deficiency from the previous legislative session.

Bills repealing the 1935 law es- tablishing unemployment bureaus, in order that they may set up under the unemployment compensation law, and authorizing the purchase of land for the site of the proposed $50,000 state office building also were signed.

OVER 5,000 IN AN INSURRECTION SLAIN

By The Associated Press.

ISTANBUL, June 16.—The government today announced more than 5,000 Kurdish rebels had been killed or wounded in the suppression of revolt in the Dersim re- gion of eastern Turkey.

I WILL OIL-PLATE YOUR ENGINE
in next to no time

And even quicker I can plainly state how it saves your oil and your engine to change to Oil-Plating. After I put in Conoco Germ Processed oil, which is the only oil that forms Oil-Plating, let's say you run a bit and then want to park—a few minutes or maybe hours. But every drop of Germ Processed oil will not drain back down into your crankcase like an everyday oil. Instead of that, a definite amount of this oil is always left closely plated all over the pistons, cylinders, bearings and other parts, from the bottom clear to the top of your engine. You'd say that the oil is united for good, to every working surface. I don't know of anything that will make Oil-Plating let go, no matter if you want to stop and start at every doorway, or make 500 miles a day across the mountains. Staying in place and not just splashing on and off, Oil-Plating can't leave the usual openings for friction and wear. Your smooth, quiet, cool-running engine will certainly make you notice that, and of course, your own eyes will see Conoco Germ Processed oil staying up around full.

The Rosenthal Clothiers launched the defense of their city softball championship last night at Liberty Park by defeating the Montgomery Wards, 11 to 0, in a National Division game featured by the two-hit pitching of Duane Beucke.

Both the safeties off the champions' speedball pitcher were of the scratch variety and there was never any doubt about the outcome as the Clothiers set their title defense to rolling with a six-run lead in the first three innings.

The Missouri Pacific Boosters demonstrated there are sufficient grounds for their pre-season rating as outstanding title contenders by trouncing the American Disinfecting Co., Adco, 15 to 4. Hays, strikeout artist of the shop team, fanned 11 batters and did not allow a hit until two were out in the sixth frame. Ten of his strikeouts came in the first four stanzas.

The other game on the evening's program saw the Dixel Gassers, with many of last year's runner-up Musser players in their lineup, nose out the Sno-Flakes, 9 to 7, in the most interesting game on the card.

The Gassers got away to a 5-1 lead, but the Sno-Flakes tied it up in the fourth and threatened again in the final inning. Trailing, 9 to 5, going into the seventh stanza the Bakers lashed out two home runs and had the tying run on second when the side was retired.

The American Division returns to action tonight and the Nationals will play again on Friday night instead of their regular Thursday date, vacated to make way for the Elks' wrestling show which has been moved up a day for this week only. Tonight's program features a clash between the Katy and Stewart Avenue, both victors their first time out Monday night.

Giants Obtain Berger From Bees for Gabler and a Reported $35,000

PITTSBURGH, June 16.—Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants announced last night he had traded Frank (Gabby) Gabler, young right-handed pitcher, to the Boston Bees for Walter (Wally) Berger, veteran outfielder, a few hours before the midnight deadline for trades between major league teams.

Terry said the Giants also gave a sum of cash to Boston in the trade but declined to say how much. Unconfirmed reports were that the amount was $35,000.

Berger, a right-handed hitter, has been with Boston since he broke into the major leagues in the spring of 1930. He played both left and center field for the Bees.

The Boston player boasts a lifetime batting average in the major leagues of .305 and was batting at a .309 clip this year. Noted for his home run hitting, he has 200 circuit clouts to his credit in major league competition, including six this year.

Gabler won nine games and lost eight last year in his second season of major league ball. He reported to the Giants from Nashville in the spring of 1935.

Handicapped by a knee injury, Gabler has pitched only nine innings this season, principally in relief roles. His record shows no games won or lost.

FIGHTS TUESDAY NIGHT

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK—Harry Balsamo, 160,

THE SPORTS ROUNDUP

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

KENOSHA, Wis., June 16.—Don't let those bearish reports about Joe Louis' condition fool you.... The Bomber may not be the man killer he was two years ago, but he still can throw that right and left.... He's been a bit slow getting tuned up, but yesterday's workout proved he can go to town when he wants to.... His managers aren't worrying yet.... They're so sure Joe is going to trim Braddock next Tuesday night they've already engaged training quarters at Pompton Lakes, N. J., for September fight with Max Schmeling.... The eight rounds Louis boxed yesterday was his best drill since he trained for Max Baer two years ago.

Site notes: Mike Jacobs sent word up from Chicago today there is more than $600,000 in the bank.... Mike still insists the brawl will hit the million dollar mark.... It was just three years ago this month that the New York State Athletic Commission ruled Braddock was not a fit opponent for Hans Birkie.... Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, is here as a trained seal for a syndicate.... He says if Braddock comes out for the fifth round he's a sure winner.... Instead of trying to dope which is the better of the pair, most of the experts are spending their time trying to decide whether Louis or Braddock is the worse.

Special trains will bring thousands of fans to the fight.

CORN AND WHEAT BOTH IN DECLINE

CHICAGO, June 16.—Predictions of showers in Canada had more or less to do with bringing about late setbacks of Chicago wheat values today.

Failure of the Winnipeg wheat market to hold price gains and smallness of export business in Canadian wheat, 500,000 bushels, were bearish factors.

Receipts of newly harvested wheat at domestic points southwest were liberal.

At the close, wheat was 2c to 14c under yesterday's finish, July 1, $1.10; Sept. 1, $1.09; to $1.095; corn 2½ cents off to 3c up; July 1, $1.11½; to $1.12½; Sept. 1, $1.10½ to 9½c, and oats to 5c down.
